Actions to stop doing: The team should stop waiting until the due date to work on plans and reports. While we still have good results, it is better not to be rushed in documentation.

Actions to start doing: The team should start delegating smaller, daily tasks to each member so we all have a solid idea of what we need to do each day. The team should also start having more frequent scrum meetings, which will allow us to talk about our progress and keep track of where everyone is at in their tasks. This will allow the team to have better communication in what each team member is doing.

Actions to keep doing: The team should continue communicating on Slack about things we're working on or questions we have. The team should continue having all group members present during all meetings, so no one falls behind or is left out.

Work completed: "As a curious individual, I want to be able to take a picture of something and find out what it is, so I can be more knowledgeable."
Work not completed: "As an explorer, I want to be able to geotag my location so I can remember where the photo was taken." "As a hiker, I want to be able to take a picture of a flower I saw with an app so that I can view it later."

Work completion rate: We completed one user story during this sprint. There were a total of six days in the sprint. The estimated ideal work hours were 18. This works out to about 0.17 user stories/day and 3 work hours/day.
